Eric Galton is considered by many to be a pioneer and defining force in the field of Alternative Dispute Resolution. Since 1989 he has mediated over forty four hundred cases, employing a variety of mediation styles, and consistently maintains a 91% settlement rate. Mr. Galton is highly versatile; he mediates disputes ranging from a half day to two weeks in length, in cities all over Texas and elsewhere in the country, involving anywhere from two to 125 parties from a broad spectrum of ethnic, socioeconomic, political, and business backgrounds. He mediates disputes in over 17 areas of law. In addition to his wealth of practical experience, Eric Galton inspires and motivates participants through his uncompromising ethics, incisiveness, compassion, and genuine love of the mediation process. Eric was listed as a Texas Super Lawyer in 2006 and 2007 by Texas Monthly Magazine and was one of five mediators listed in the Texas Lawyer Go-to-Guide in 2007. Eric is both a fellow and Governor of the International Academy of Mediators.

Personal

Eric is married to Professor Kimberlee Kovach, who lectures at South Texas College of Law. She is a past Chair of the State Bar of Texas ADR Section and Immediate Past Chair of the ABA Section on Dispute Resolution. She authored the West Publishing book Mediation: Principles and Practice, and has trained in excess of five thousand mediators. Mr. Galton is the proud father of five children: three sons, Justin, Seth, and Noah, and twin daughters, Katherine and Mikaela. An avid basketball and football fan, Eric will talk to anyone about his favorite teams, the Duke University Blue Devils and the Texas Longhorns. Eric also enjoys writing screenplays, none of which, to his chagrin, have yet made it to the silver screen.
